An Itinerant Graphophone.

[From the Bay City, Mich., Press.]
The Springfield, Mass., detachment of the Salvation Army has a graphophonic arrangement for attracting the attention of the masses. Inside of a large bass drum is placed a graphophone which will reproduce sacred and secular music as the army marches through the streets or gather an audience for its services. The apparatus is mounted on a rubber tired carriage, in order that there may be a minimum of vibration. Gen.
Booth-Tucker predicts that this attraction will lead to better results in the work of his organization, and intends to try the experiment in different parts of the country.

Wanted.

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if there is any person who has used Green's August Flower, for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Trouble that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual constiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. W. T. Brooks.

Caution!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents.—W. T. Brooks.

ON OPERATING TABLE.

John Terrell, a Wealthy Farmer,
Shot and Killed Son-in-Law.The Frenzied Man Then Loaded His Shotgun, Held a Mob at Bay and Delivered Himself Up to the Sheriff.

Huflton, Ind., July 13.—John Terrell, a wealthy farmer living near Petroleum, nine miles north of the city, killed his son-in-law, Melvin Wolfe, Sunday afternoon, firing both barrels of a shotgun into his head as Wolfe lay on the doctor's operating table to have a leg amputated, necessitated by a wound from Terrell's gun fired a short time before.

Four years ago Wolfe married Terrell's daughter. Wolfe deserted the girl, it is said, leaving her with a child in her arms. A suit was brought to compel him to support his wife. It is claimed Wolfe had twice driven past the Terrell home shouting insulting remarks and shaking his fist at Terrell.

The third time he drove past, Terrell jumped from some bushes along the roadside and fired at his son-in-law with a double-barreled shotgun. The first charge shattered Wolfe's right leg. The second barrel missed. Wolfe was hurried to the office of Dr. Saunders at Petroleum and placed on an operating table to have the leg amputated. While a crowd stood around watching the doctor, Terrell came up from his home in a buggy, broke in the doors of the doctor's office, drove out the crowd at the point of his gun, and, with the remark, "I am after him and I am going to get him yet," fired both barrels into his son-in-law's head. He was terribly mutilated. At the time he fired the young man was only half-conscious. Terrell got in his buggy, loaded up his shotgun and pointed it at the mob that had hastily formed, held it at bay and drove to the sheriff's residence. He is in jail.

TRAINS COLLIDED.

Three Tramps Killed and Over Fifty Persons Injured.

Kansas City, Mo., July 13.—A Missouri Pacific fast mail train which left St. Louis Sunday morning for Kansas City crashed into a south-bound excursion train that had become stalled at "Dead Man's Curve," between Little Blue and Lees Summit. Three tramps were killed and four tramps and 50 Negroes on the excursion train were injured. Most of the injuries consisted of cuts and bruises. None of the passengers on the fast mail were hurt. Only the locomotive, a baggage car and mail car on the fast mail left the track.

Kansas City, Mo., July 13.—The locomotive on the excursion train, which consisted of 12 well filled coaches, broke down. While repairs were making, two flagmen were sent ahead to stop the fast mail, which was about due. The engineer on the mail train failed to see the foremost flagman, and, it is said, slackened up only when warned by the second man, who was running at a high rate of speed, and it was impossible to come to a full stop. When the fast mail struck it was making only 15 miles an hour.

JUDGE WILCOX DEAD.

He Was the Intimate Friend and Adviser of King Kalakaua.

Honolulu, July 13.—(By Pacific Cable.)—Judge Wilcox, the intimate friend and adviser of the late King Kalakaua and other monarchs of the Hawaiian islands, is dead as the result of an operation, blood poisoning, having set in. Judge Wilcox was a noted authority on the Hawaiian language and was thoroughly versed in the history and law of the islands.

KISHINEFF RELIEF FUND.

Over Seven Hundred Thousand Roubles Have Been Received.

St. Petersburg, July 13.—The Kishineff relief committee has received the sum of 192,500 roubles from America and 363,700 roubles from Russia. The total receipts up to the present time amounts to 736,500 roubles and the total expenditures reached 464,500 roubles. The future expenditure is estimated at least 350,000 roubles.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 13.—Secretary of War Root was the guest Sunday night of President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill. He arrived here unaccompanied on the 5:23 train Sunday evening. Departmental matters were discussed.

King Peter's Birthday.

Belgrade, July 13.—The birthday of King Peter was celebrated Sunday and thanksgiving services were held throughout the country. The king held a reception at the palace and granted an amnesty in honor of the occasion.

The Pretender Defeated.

Tangier, Morocco, July 13.—It is confirmed that the war minister, El Monabhi, entered Taza, the stronghold of the pretender, Bu Hamara, July 7, after seven days' hard fighting, which resulted in a complete defeat of the rebellious tribes.

Turks and Bulgarians Fight.

Paris, July 13.—According to a dispatch from Constantinople, published here, engagements have taken place between Turkish and Bulgarian troops of the frontier, which the Turks accuse the Bulgarians of crossing.

SEVERE STORMS.

Property in Baltimore, Washington and Nebraska Damaged.

Baltimore, July 13.—A severe wind and rain storm occurred here Sunday afternoon which was particularly violent in a limited section of Northeast Baltimore, where, within a radius of about four blocks, 50 houses were unroofed, walks demolished and trees uprooted. For several squares the streets were thickly strewn with debris of wrecked roofs, brick and splintered limbs of trees. Three hundred people were rendered homeless for the time being and were compelled to find shelter in neighboring houses. The damage to houses and household goods is estimated at $100,000. The rainfall here for the day was 3.50 inches and the velocity of the wind 46 miles an hour.

Washington, July 13.—During a terrific thunder storm Sunday lightning struck a boat house near the Potomac river in which about a dozen men had taken refuge. Robert Smith was killed. Charles Slaughter was so severely injured that he may die and Wm. Lyons is in a hospital.

Everyone of the men, who had taken refuge in the boat house, felt the effects of the thunderbolt. Ten feet of the flagpole over the house was wrecked and the structure itself was wrecked. C. H. Bannigan, the policeman on duty on the beach, while hurrying to the emergency hospital for assistance after the accident was twice rendered temporarily unconscious from the effects of the lightning's striking trees near him.

In another part of the city Nora Shipley, colored, who was sitting at a window, was stunned by a lightning bolt.

Beaver City, Neb., July 13.—A terrific electrical and wind storm prevailed here Sunday afternoon lasting 45 minutes in which time two and one-fourth inches of rain fell. The wind blew with great velocity, doing much damage to small buildings, wind mills and to the wheat crop just ready for harvest. The Union Salvation army of Kansas and Nebraska, now holding a camp meeting here, suffered much loss. Nine of their tents were blown down. Commander Holland was struck by a tent-pole and sustained a dislocation of the shoulder. The camp was flooded with water. The women members of the army have been taken into the houses of citizens and will be provided for during the remainder of their stay here. Beaver creek is out of its banks and a section of the Burlington tracks between Beaver City and Stamford is washed out.

York, Neb., July 13.—A hail storm Sunday destroyed all crops in the northeastern part of the country, covering a strip nine miles in length by three in width.

Hastings, Neb., July 13.—A cloud-burst visited the Little Blue river district south of Hastings Sunday. Nearly eight inches of water fell. The stream is out of its banks and the highest for 19 years. Much property is reported destroyed and many head of cattle drowned. A party of campers on the river barely escaped with their lives.

MOB LAW CONDEMNED.

A Colored Baptist Sunday-School Convention Passed Resolutions.

Bloomington, Ill., July 13.—The Wood River Baptist Sunday-school association, colored, Sunday night adjourned a week's convention after adopting resolutions deploring mob law and condemning all unlawful executions by mobs. It is recommended that if officers will not protect the home of the Negro, he must protect it as best he can. Mob law is termed anarchy. Congratulations were sent to Gov. Durlin, of Indiana, because he had the courage to protect the rights of citizens regardless of color or race.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

Molders' Union Picket Badly Wounded
By a Strike Breaker.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 13.—George Moore, a Molders' union picket, was shot and badly wounded from ambush at the factory of E. C. Stearns & Co., Sunday. A strike breaker is believed to have fired the shot from a rifle. A strike has been in progress at the factory for several weeks. The police reserves were called out and two arrests made. Several rifles were found on the premises and seized. Intense excitement prevails.

After the Palma Trophy.

Bisley, Eng., July 13.—Funds have been subscribed or are promised already to enable a British team to go to the United States in 1904 to endeavor to recapture the Palma trophy. British riflemen are delighted at this prompt action.

Two Deaths From Lockjaw.

New York, July 13.—Two more deaths from lockjaw, due to the explosion of Fourth of July fireworks, were reported Sunday. The victims were a Mrs. Van Ness, of Newark, and Henry Bridgewater, of Port Richmond, S. I.

Death of Father Antrobus.

London, July 13.—Father Antrobus, the superior of Brompton oratory, is dead. He was regarded as a possible successor to Cardinal Vaughan as archbishop of Westminster. In his early career he was in the diplomatic service.

Death of Wm. Ernest Henley.

London, July 13.—William Ernest Henley, poet and collaborator in several plays with Robert Louis Stevenson, died Sunday at the age of 51 years. He was in his usual health until a fortnight ago.

NEWS IS REASSURING.

Distinct Signs of Improvement in Pope Leo's Condition.Dr. Laponi Felt Sufficiently Secure to Leave the Vatican to Go Home,
Where His Daughter Lies
Stricken With Fever.

Rome, July 13.—Pope Leo lived to see another Sunday and with the Sabbath quiet which fell upon Rome came also peace and even progress to the pontiff. Beginning Sunday morning with distinct signs of improvement, he maintained this throughout the day. Sunday night Dr. Laponi made the following important statement in answer to the question if he believed the improvement in the pope's condition could continue:

"I believe that if the improvement lasts until July 21 we may not perhaps achieve an absolute cure, but we will secure such a general state of health in the patient as will allay our anxiety."

During the morning the pontiff participated in the celebration of mass. The ceremony was held in the chapel adjoining the sick chamber, Mgr. Marzoni being the celebrant. The door connecting the sick room with the chapel was opened so that his holiness might follow the service. He insisted that Dr. Laponi and his valet Central should leave his side and enter the chapel in order to better hear the mass.

The history of the day has been comparatively uneventful. The pontiff had several hours' repose. Dr. Laponi resting near him throughout the night. The physician twice administered injections to him, once of digitalis to strengthen the heart and once of camphor caffeine to overcome the patient's growing depression. Sunday morning found the pontiff with spirits bright and the conditions generally improved. Dr. Mazzoni joined his assistant at 8:20 a. m., and after a brief conference issued the most encouraging official bulletin thus far given. Besides summarizing the satisfactory pathological conditions, the doctor gave the cheering tidings that the pontiff's condition had manifestly improved. The pulse, which went down Saturday to 82, had risen to 85, while the temperature and respiration showed no abnormal characteristics.

Pope Leo took his usual light breakfast and Dr. Laponi, who has remained in unceasing vigil since the patient's case became desperate, felt sufficiently secured to leave the Vatican for the first time, going to his home, where his daughter lies stricken with fever.

Rome, July 13.—As many fantastic descriptions are in circulation regarding the room where Pope Leo lies, a press representative has taken some pains to secure an exact account from one of the pope's nephews, who sees his uncle daily. The room is large, bright and airy. The walls are hung with pale green and gold silk damask. Entering it, with the sun pouring through the ample window, is like a taste of spring. A large curtain divides the room and is generally drawn open, showing on the right the modest narrow brass bed covered with a red damask coverlet. Even in his desperate condition, Pope Leo shows great daintiness with regard to his person, performing a full toilet whenever possible and changing daily his fine white batiste nightshirt. At the head of the bed is a good picture of the Madonna, besides a holy water font, while in the middle of the adjacent wall is an immense crucifix, reaching from the floor to the ceiling, with an ivory figure of Christ. At the foot of the bed stands a very simple walnut writing desk, at which the pope has written the best of his Latin poems. On the other side of the curtain stands the now famous arm chair, which is most comfortable, a small table, a few shelves with the pope's preferred books and nothing more. The chamber gives the idea of extreme simplicity, luxuries being rigorously banished.

THE ROYAL REGATTA.

Goelet's Yacht Swan Won First Prize in Class Four.

Copenhagen, July 13.—The regatta of the Royal Yacht club opened Sunday in fine, warm weather. Seventy yachts, representing Great Britain, Germany, Scandinavia and America, participated. Robert W. Goelet's yacht Swan won the first prize in class four, defeating the well-known Swedish racer Khaki. The course was 20 miles long. The Swan's time was 5 hours 42 minutes and 6 seconds and the Khaki's 6 hours 12 minutes and 51 seconds.

B. Y. P. U. Convention Ended.

Atlanta, Ga., July 13.—The convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America ended Sunday night. No decision was made as to the place for holding next year's convention, that matter being left to the executive committee.

Heat Victims in Paris.

Paris, July 13.—The intense heat continued Sunday until a storm of extreme violence broke over the city Sunday afternoon and reduced the temperature. Six persons succumbed to sunstroke during the early part of the day.

Assassin Promoted.

Belgrade, Serbia, July 13.—Col. Mishic, of the Sixth infantry regiment, which took a prominent part in the coup d'etat of June 11, has been promoted to the post of department chief of ministry of war.

Home Duties

The real heroines of every day are in our homes. Frequently, however, it is a mistaken and useless heroism.

Women seem to listen to every call of duty except the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. How much harder the daily tasks become when some derangement of the female organs makes every movement painful and keeps the nervous system unstrung? Irritability takes the place of happiness and amiability; and weakness and suffering takes the place of health and strength. As long as they can drag themselves around, women continue to work and perform their household duties. They have been led to believe that suffering is necessary because they are women. What a mistake!

The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will banish pain and restore happiness. Don't resort to strong stimulants or narcotics when this great strengthening, healing remedy for women is always within reach.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. No man will see your letter. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

For proof read the symptoms, suffering and cure recited in the following letters:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express to you the great benefit I have derived from your advice and the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My trouble was female weakness in its worst form and I was in a very bad condition. I could not perform my household duties, my back ached, I was extremely nervous, and I could not eat or sleep, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. My husband spent hundreds of dollars to get me well, and all the medicine that the doctors prescribed failed to do me any good. I resorted to an operation which the physician said was necessary to restore me to health, but I suffered more after it than I did before; I had hemorrhages of the womb that nothing could seem to stop.

"I noticed one of your advertisements and wrote you for advice. I received your reply and carefully followed all instructions. I immediately began to get stronger, and in two weeks was about the house. I took eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and continued following your advice, and to-day I am a well woman. Your remedies and help are a Godsend to suffering women, and I cannot find words to thank you for what you have done for me."—MRS. LOTTIE V. NAYLOR, 1325 N. J. Ave., N.W., Washington, D. C.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

"I was suffering with falling of the womb and could hardly drag about, but after taking five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was completely cured. I am now a well woman and able to do all my work.

"I think your medicine one of the best remedies in the world."—MRS. J. M. LEE, 141 Lyndal St., Newcastle, Pa.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done a great deal for me. I suffered so much from falling of the womb and all the troubles connected with it. I doctored for years with doctors and other remedies but received only temporary relief.

"I began taking your medicine, and had not taken it long before I was feeling better. My husband said that I should keep right on taking it as long as it gave me relief from my suffering, as I could not expect to be cured by one or two bottles. I did so and am now able to be on my feet and work hard all day, and go to bed and rest at night. Thanks to your Vegetable Compound I am certainly grateful for the relief it gave me. It is the mother's great friend. I would not be without it in my house, for when I feel tired or out of sorts I take a few doses and feel all right.

"I would recommend your medicine to all tired mothers, and especially to those suffering as I was."—MRS. R. F. CHAMBERS, Bennet, Neb.

A LEADER!

SUCH IS THE
Cincinnati Enquirer
IN THE NEWSPAPER WORLD.

An indispensable adjunct to the man of business, the financier, manufacturer, producer, tradesman, farmer and laborer.

All need certain facts and knowledge of affairs that pertain to each one's calling in life.

More especially, now, during the great onward march our country is making towards wealth and power, science and literature, mechanism and products of the soil.

The wide-awake gathers dollars where lagards earn cents. The enterprising newspaper that brings knowledge of the world's doings is the main prop and capital of the money-maker. Without the aid of a paper, like the ENQUIRER, one becomes the victim of his more enterprising neighbor. The information the ENQUIRER brings you for a few cents costs thousands of dollars to obtain. You need the ENQUIRER, and we want your patronage because deserving of it. The DAILY ENQUIRER is the best all around newspaper in the United States. The WEEKLY ENQUIRER ranks as one of the ablest weekly journals in the land, and serves the average town and country masses faithfully in a reliable and profitable manner at $1.00 a year, while the daily issue at $14.00 a year, is worth that sum every day to the business man. See our agent or postmaster, or remit direct to

He Clinched It.
 Young Lawyer—Your honor, I claim the release of my client on the ground of insanity. He is a stupid fool, an idiot, and is not responsible for any act he may have committed.
 The Judge—He doesn't appear stupid to me.
 The Prisoner (interrupting)—Just look at the lawyer I've hired, your honor.—N. Y. Times.

The Trouble in the Case.
 "You see," said the Social Reformer, "we arranged a harmony dinner to help reconcile labor and capital, but it didn't come off."
 "Why not?"
 "Why, just then the bricklayers asked for shorter hours, and the waiters went out on a sympathetic strike."
 —Puck.

Limerick Intelligence.
 A beautiful lassie named Florence, Once wept till her tears flowed in tureen.
 When asked why she cried,
 She sighed, and replied,
 "The sheriff's been here with some violence."
 —Columbia Jester.

A WOMAN'S WAY.

He—She told me that it was her first year out.
 She—Why, she's been out four seasons.
 He—Well, I suppose she counts four seasons to the year.—Chicago Journal.

Hope.
 Hope springs eternal in the human breast, In politics its influence is plain. The man who has by office once been blest Hopes on for more and never works again.
 —Washington Star.

Both Before and After.
 The Adorer—It's wonderful, old man, how love will open a fellow's eyes and let him see in a girl things that he never saw before.
 A Divorcee—No doubt. But it's more wonderful how it blinds him to things that he'll see later.—Town Topics.

A Pointer.
 Mabel—Papa is getting anxious about your calls. Yesterday he wanted to know who you were.
 Adorer—Um—I say, Mabel, if he mentions the subject again, tell him you heard me grumbling about high taxes.—N. Y. Weekly.

Two Different Kinds.
 "Does your typewriter need repairs?" asked the meandering tinker as he entered the office.
 "It would seem so," replied the boss. "She just went across the street to consult a dentist." —Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Action Just Sifted Him.
 "These labor unions are doing some good work, after all."
 "What do you refer to?"
 "A walking delegate stopped our minister's sermon to-day and told him that he was working overtime." —Puck.

Exchanging Compliments.
 "Pretty girls are sure to develop into peevish women," said the handsome man.
 "Yes," replied the pretty girl, "and handsome men develop into old codgers." —N. Y. Times.

Began at the End.
 Grace—Why, Ethel! How could you tell all the news in Mary's letter so soon? You haven't even read it.
 Ethel—Well, you see, dear, I read the postscript first.—Yonkers Statesman.

Still Looking for Him.
 Patience—Hasn't Miss Olden got searching eyes?
 Patience—Well, I don't wonder. She's been looking for a husband for 20 years.—Yonkers Statesman.

Bargain Hunting.
 Mrs. Trotter—I've been downtown all afternoon and feel awfully tired.
 Trotter—Undoubtedly, my dear; you certainly do look rather shop-worn.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

What Did She Mean?
 Jones—I'm quite a near neighbor of yours now, Mrs. Golightly; I've taken a house on the river.
 Mrs. G.—Oh, well, I hope you'll drop in some day.—Tit-Bits.

Why So Named.
 Wantanno—Why do you call that boy of yours "Plannel?"
 Duzno—Because he just naturally shrinks from washing.—Baltimore American.

His String.
 "He says he accumulated quite a string of fish."
 "He means he accumulated quite a string of fish stories."—Philadelphia Press.

Preferable.
 "I think I will write a book on the automobile," said Hojack.
 "Too wobbly for comfort," replied Tomdick. "Better use a desk."—Town Topics.

Enough to Kill Him.
 Hobo Charley—Say, loidy, if dat dawg bites me he dies, see?
 Lady—I believe you; I don't see how he could recover.—Baltimore American.

THE New York World

Thrice-a-Week Edition.

Read Wherever the English Language is Spoken.

The Thrice-a-Week World was a brilliant success in the beginning and has steadily grown ever since. Time is test of all things, and has set its seal of approval on the Thrice-a-Week World, which is widely circulated in every State and Territory of the Union, and wherever there are people who can read our mother tongue.

This paper for the coming winter and the year 1903, will make its news service, if possible, more extensive than ever. All events of importance, no matter where they happen, are reported accurately and promptly.

The subscriber for only one dollar a year, gets three papers every week and more general reading than most great dailies can furnish at five or six times the price.

The Thrice-a-Week World is absolutely fair in its political news. Partisan bias is never allowed to affect its news columns, and Democrat and Republican alike can obtain in its pages truthful accounts of all the great political campaigns.

In addition to all the news, the Thrice-a-Week World furnishes the best serial fiction, elaborate market report and other features of interest.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and THE BOURBON NEWS together one year for $2.75.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR SHERIFF.

We are authorized to announce E. P. Clarke as a candidate for Sheriff of Bourbon County, with Albert S. Thompson and Wm. F. Talbott as deputies, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Harvey Hibler as a candidate for Sheriff of Bourbon County, with Brutus J. Clay, Jr., and James Burke as deputies, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Democratic State Central Committee Meets.

The Democratic State Central Committee met at 1:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Frankfort. Mr. Garnett was the only absentee.

Committeeman Rhea made a motion that the committee go into executive session, and this was adopted with an amendment permitting the State nominees to remain.

The first matter taken up by the committee after going into executive session was the selection of the campaign committee. The list was presented by Governor Beckham, speaking for the nominees of the party, and agreed on by unanimous vote. The committee is as follows:

Chairman, S. W. Hager.
Executive Campaign Committee—Judge J. E. Robbins, of Mayfield; Judge J. M. Lassing, of Burlington; Hon. Lewis McQuown, of Bowling Green; Hon. John A. Fulton, of Bardonia; and Hon. Henry Prewitt, of Mt. Sterling.

Chairman Hager will call that body to order within a few days and arrange for the opening of the campaign. No decision has been reached as to where the headquarters will be located or who will be secretary of the committee. The adjournment of the committee at 2:35 o'clock until 4 was the result of an attempt by Chairman Young to over-ride the majority of the committee in the Louisville matter.

It was an anti-Young meeting up to the time we go to press.

THE RIGHT THING.—Groceries, fruits and vegetables at the right prices.
(21) DAVIS & FARIS.

Negro Skinned Alive.

At Devon, W. Va., a negro whose name could not be learned was caught by a mob and skinned alive. He died soon afterwards. The man kidnapped a young woman and tied her to a tree in the woods in the mountains. The woman was brutally assaulted. For three days he compelled her to remain in his company. He returned each day to town and bought food, compelling her to eat. The neighbors were aroused by her absence and a search instituted with the above result.

The Republican Convention.

The Bourbon County Republicans met in convention at Odd Fellows Hall, Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, to appoint delegates to go to the State Convention in Louisville to-morrow to nominate candidates for State offices. A. W. Cottingham was elected chairman without opposition and Tom Johnson secretary. The following delegates were appointed: Dr. Frank Fithian, R. C. Gorey, W. P. Hume, Percy Jones, A. W. Cottingham, J. P. Hutelcraft, H. R. Croxton, W. W. Cherry, Dr. Benj. Hickman, Milt. Woodford, Geo. Nelson, Tom Johnson, R. B. Grant, J. D. McClintock, U. S. G. Pepper, Geo. W. Stuart, N. A. Moore, Folks Fleming, Dr. G. W. Dailey, J. M. Russell, Thomas Whaley, James Shea, J. D. Earlywine, A. J. Fee and W. L. Yerkes. They go uninstructed, but the majority of them favor Pratt for Governor, and Judge Burnam for second choice. They are instructed to vote as a unit on all questions.

If you will notice the list of delegates you will see the names of two of the most prominent Republican politicians of the county are omitted—Hudge H. C. Howard and County Chairman Mit. Jacoby. We wonder why?

Scramble for Empty Honors.

The Republican Convention held throughout Kentucky Saturday leave the gubernatorial contest an open race as out of 2,268 votes which will be cast in the State Convention to be held in Louisville Wednesday, the division is—

Belknap	381
Willson	197
Pratt	162
Uninstructed	735
Contested	268
Not reported	515

Total.....2,268
Necessary to choice, 1,135.

These figures show that neither of the avowed candidates can yet claim the empty honor as theirs; and in point of fact the uninstructed counties have in their hands the balance of power and will ultimately name the man.

FINE PREMIUM LIST.—A fine premium list is shown at the Lexington Elks Fair this year. The dates of the fair are August 10 to 15 inclusive. Catalogues are now out and can be had on application to Secretary Paul M. Justice. There will be four $500 purses: races for trotters and pacers besides running races each day. Besides these there will be several handsome cup races and other special rings. The live stock exhibition promises to be bigger and better than ever this year. BeBaugh's 20th Century Band of Chicago will furnish music and one fair the round trip has been granted by all railroads.

ROBBED.—Pick-pockets relieved Woodford Clay of $1,000 before the fifth race at Chicago Friday. However, he borrowed $500 and bet it on Nannie Hodge, in the next race, at four to one, and quit big winner on the day.

HAY AND RYE WANTED.—Highest market price paid for hay and rye.

THE FAIR!

TEN YEARS

Having passed since the portals of The Fair Store were first swung open to the public, ten years that were but a succession of trade triumphs, we can with all propriety say that the store has fulfilled the mission it was created for, and that the public has appreciated its efforts. The career of the store, universally considered a very remarkable one, warrants a few words concerning the principles which made such success possible. We state them, therefore.

Why did The Fair Store succeed so quickly in building up the largest retail business in the city?

BECAUSE

We do not misrepresent in the store and do not permit our employees to do so either.

BECAUSE

We have a smaller expense ratio than any other store that we know of and can, therefore, afford to sell cheaper.

BECAUSE

We are attending to our own business, "With malice towards none, with charity for all," we look straight ahead and attend to our own affairs. We are not jealous of competing stores; we do not hope for nor do we predict the failure of others; we have no desire to plant the ascending star of our success in place of the descending star of another store but are happy to live and let live.

BECAUSE

We sell at one price only. We give no discounts, no rebates, no private arrangements of any sort, to anyone. A child can buy here as safely as an expert.

BECAUSE

We refund money whenever you do not like your purchase you can get your money back as quick as a wink at this store.

BECAUSE

We buy and sell for Cash Only. We are wedded to no factory or concern of any kind, we buy for cash and where we can buy to the best advantage.

BECAUSE

We permit no one to undersell us, and come what may, we'll fulfill this promise.

SOMETIME

Soon, Electric Cars will be running through to Lexington.

HOME FIRST;

The World Afterwards. A good motto this, for either individuals or communities, and readily finds its echo in the voice of every merchant in this city. Every dollar spent in your home stores, adds to the development of home industries. It helps the growth of the individual, for we are all more or less dependent upon each other.

SHOOT TO KILL.—Burglars entered the residence of James Doty, on Second street, Saturday night, and succeeded in getting $15. They then proceeded to the homes of Prof. Lawhorn and Harry Kendall but awakened the inmates, and were driven away. Citizens should keep loaded guns and give these prowlers a warm reception.

FRESH GOODS.—Nice fresh potted goods—pickles, etc., for fishing parties, lawn parties, etc.

2t ARKLE'S GROCERY.

THE INTERURBAN.—The laying of the rails for the interurban is almost completed in Bourbon, but from the Bourbon line to Elkhorn bridge there has not been a tie or rail laid. Something is causing a delay in the construction of this road, but it is utterly impossible to find out the trouble. We will say now you may expect cars to be running about January 1st.

As a result of several conferences between the representatives of James B. Haggins and those of the interurban road it was decided yesterday that an iron bridge should be built at the point where the road passes the entrance to the Haggins property on the Lexington road.

The roadway at this point will also be straightened.

FRESH DAILY.—We roast peanuts daily. You can always get them fresh.

LOCATED AT ST. LOUIS.—Gus Margolen, eldest son of Mr. H. Margolen, of this city, disappeared from Richmond, Ky., where he was engaged in business, several years ago, and his parents have never been able to locate him until Friday when his father ran upon him in St. Louis. He is now married and in the saloon business. He is expected to make a visit home, when the fatted calf will be butchered.

Meeting Of The Bourbon County Medical Association.

The Bourbon County Medical Association held their monthly meeting in the Council Chamber, in this city, Friday afternoon. The following physicians were present: Drs. Frank Fithian, C. G. Daugherty, R. T. Wood, Margaret Wood, Wm. Kenn-y, W. O. Ussery, Silas Evans and S. J. Wallingford, of Paris; Dr. Daily, of Millersburg; Dr. Anderson, of Clintonville; Dr. Muir, of Muir; Dr. Herby, of Winchester; Dr. McLeod, of Lexington, and Dr. Louis Frank, of Louisville.

Dr. Frank read a very interesting paper on "Diagnosis of Abdominal Diseases," as did Dr. Wallingford, on "Otitis Media and Treatment."

After the meeting adjourned they partook of six o'clock dinner at Crosdale's cafe.

They met again on second Friday in August.

Sad Accident.

On Friday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, while Roger, the five-year-old son of Mr. Dorsey McClure, of Nicholas county, was riding on a load of wheat, near Millersburg, he fell to the pike between the team of horses and his brains were kicked out by one of the team. He was a bright little fellow, and a great pet of his father, who has the sympathy of his many friends in this, his old home.

THE VERY BEST.—For the oldest and best whiskies, wines, beer and cigars, go to Windsor Hotel Bar. They handle nothing but the very best that can be bought.

A KICKING HORSE.—Sunday afternoon, as Leroy McDowell and wife were driving on Upper Main street there horse made things lively for a while by stopping and kicking. Mrs. McDowell quietly stepped out of the buggy and waited until the horse was satisfied, after which they drove on home. The horse was badly cut up. The buggy was slightly damaged.

CARRY AN OLD UMBRELLA.—The L. & N. people are having the big bridge at the foot of Main street covered with tar pitch, and we have heard of several nice dresses and umbrellas being ruined in last few days by the dropping pitch. If you have occasion to cross the foot bridge it would be advisable to carry an old umbrella, one that you do not care to use again.

Last Will of C. S. Brent.

The will of C. S. Brent, deceased, was filed for probate in Fayette County Court, Friday.

After providing for payment of his debts and funeral expenses, his residence on North Broadway, Lexington, is left in trust with his sons, Alfred and Henry, for the benefit of his wife in lieu of her dower; also the two warehouses. She is to have the use of the rents derived during her life and at her death the property is to be sold and the proceeds divided among his children equally. He leaves his wife all of his household furniture in the residence on Broadway.

The document further says: "To my daughter I leave a $5,000 insurance policy in the Providence Life Insurance Company and $2,000 policy in the A. O. U. W. order, which is made payable to her."

"These I leave in trust to the Security Trust and Safety Vault company for my daughter, the interest to be paid to her quarterly or semi-annually. At her death she can will the property."

To his nephew, Brent Marshall, he leaves his watch and chain and $250.

The remainder of the estate is to be divided equally among the testator's children.

The three sons, Alfred, Harry and Charles, are made executors.

A codicil to the will empowers the three sons to sell a part or all of the real estate left them in trust for their mother and reinvest the same in income producing property. The will is entirely in the handwriting of the testator and is dated May 22, 1903. The codicil is dated June 8, 1903.

FANCY DRINKS.—In the way of fancy drinks the Windsor Hotel Bar is the place to get them. Call for anything in the calendar and you can be accommodated.

ONLY TWO MADE ENTIRE TRIP.—But two of the automobilists that started from Chicago on the fifteen days' tour to the Mammoth Cave went the entire distance, and these arrived at Chicago Saturday at noon. Seventy-five persons were in the train of autos that left the windy city on June 25th, and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gray and two children, A. Scott Ormsby, Dr. Frank H. Davis and Jack Fry were the only ones that ever reached the mouth of the cave in automobiles.

BROKEN HEARTED.—Mrs. E. C. O'Brien, mother of Claude O'Brien, the Lexington murderer who will be hanged on July 24, returned to her home Saturday. The mother has made a brave fight to save her son from the ignominy of the hangman's noose, but her efforts have proved futile. She was asked if she had given up hope entirely. She replied: "I have resigned every thing to God."

LEXINGTON ELKS HONOR EX-PARISIAN.—As a testimonial of the appreciation the Lexington Lodge of Elks has for the devotion shown and the services rendered to it by Mr. A. C. Gutzeit he was presented with a life membership in the lodge. As evidences of his life membership a fac simile of the regular member's card made of pure gold, with lettering in black enamel, was given him. The card had on it fac similes of the signatures of W. S. Bronston, an Exalted Ruler; Claude Trapp, Secretary, and his own. Mr. Bronston, while he was Exalted Ruler, suggested that Mr. Gutzeit be made a life member, which suggestion the Lodge has adopted. He is the only life member of the Lexington Lodge and there are very few in the United States who have had the honor of being elected life members of any lodge.

NEW PLACE.—Mr. Geo. T. Lyons is ready to wait on his customers in his new building, on Main near 10th. He now has one of the neatest saloons in the city.

STATE BONDS PURCHASED.—The State Sinking Fund Commission purchased from the Bank of Commerce, of Louisville, three bonds of the issue payable in 1897, paying therefor 103½. The bonds were burned.

KEEP SWEET.

Don't be foolish, and get sour when things don't just come your way—
Don't you be a pampered baby and declare, "Now, I won't play!"
Just go grinning on and bear it;
Have you heartache? Millions share it;
If you earn a crown, you'll wear it—
Keep sweet.

Don't go handing out your troubles to your busy fellow men—
If you whine around they'll try to keep from meeting you again—
Don't declare the world's "agin" you.
Don't let pessimism win you.
Prove there's lots of good stuff in you—
Keep sweet.

If your dearest hopes seem blighted and despair looms into view,
Set your jaw and whisper grimly:
"Though they're false, yet I'll be true."
Never let your heart grow bitter;
With your ear to Hope's transmitter,
Hear Love's songbirds bravely twitter:
"Keep sweet."

Bless your heart, this world's a good one and will always help a man.
Hate, misanthropy, and malice have no place in Nature's plan.
Help your brother there who's sighing,
Keep his flag of courage flying;
Help him try—will keep you trying—
Keep sweet.

A Daughter of the Sioux

By GEN. CHARLES KING.

Copyright, 1903, by The Hobart Company.

CHAPTER III.—CONTINUED.

"You're saved this time, you cur of a Mick," were expurgated of unprintable blasphemy, the exact words of the semi-savage lord of the frontier, "but by the God that made us both I'll get you before another moon, dash dash you, and when I do I'll cut out your blackguard heart and eat it." Then bounding on his pony, away he sped at mad gallop, westward.

For a moment no further word was spoken. The officer presently helped the soldier to his feet and stayed him, for the latter's legs seemed wobbly. Field let his salvage get its breath before asking questions. Yet he was puzzled, for the man's face was strange to him. "Who are you?" he asked, at length, "and what on earth are you doing out here this time of night?"

"Kennedy, sir, Capt. Truscott's troop, at Fort Beecher. I got in with dispatches an hour ago—"

"What!" cried Field. "Dispatches! What did you do—"

"Gave 'em to the major, sir. Beg pardon; they was lookin' for the adjutant, sir, an' Sergt. Hogan said he wasn't home."

Even in the moonlight the Irishman saw the color fade from the young officer's face. The hand that stayed him dropped nerveless. With utter consternation in his big blue eyes, Field stood for a moment, stunned and silent. Then the need of instant action spurred him. "I must go—at once," he said. "You are all right now—you can get back? You've been drinking, haven't you?"

"The major's health, sir—just a sup or two."

"I've no time now to listen to how you came to be out here. I'll see you by and by." But still the young officer hesitated. One hand grasped the rein of his horse. He half turned to mount, then turned again. "Kennedy," he faltered, "you'd have been a dead man if we—if I—hadn't reached you at that moment."

"I know it, sir," burst in Pat, impatiently. "I'll never forget it—"

"Hush, Kennedy, you must forget—forget that you saw—spoke with me—forget that you saw or heard—any other soul on earth out here tonight. Can you promise?"

"I'll cut my tongue out before I ever spake the word that'll harm the lieutenant, or the—the—or anyone he says, sir. But never will I forget! It ain't in me, sir."

"Let it go at that then. Here, shake hands, Kennedy. Now, good-night!" Another instant and Field was in saddle and speeding away toward the post where lights were now dancing about the quartermaster's corral, and firefly lamps were fitting down the slope toward the stables on the flats. Ray's men were already up and doing. Slowly, stiffly following, Pat Kennedy rubbed his aching head, with a hand that shook as never did his resolution. His bewildered brain was puzzling over a weighty problem. "The lieutenant's safe all right," he muttered, "but what's gone wid the squaw that was shoutin' Sioux at that murderin' buck?"

Meantime all Fort Frayne had seemed to wake to life. No call had sounded on the trumpet. No voice had been raised, save the invariable call of the sentries, passing from post to post the half hours of the night; but the stir at the guard-house, the bustle over at the barracks, the swift footsteps of sergeants or orderlies on the plank walk or resounding wooden galleries, speedily roused first one sleeper, then another, and blinds began to fly open along the second-floor fronts, and white-robed forms to appear at the windows, and inquiring voices, male and female, hailed the passerby with "What's the matter, sergeant?" and the answer was all sufficient to rouse the entire garrison.

"Capt. Ray's troop ordered out,

Mr.," or "ma'am," as the case might be. No need to add the well-known cause of such night excursions—"Indians."

The office was brightly lighted, and there, sleepy-eyed and silent, were gathered many of the officers about their alert commander. Ray was down at his stables, passing judgment on the mounts. Only 50 were to go, the best half hundred in the sorrel troop, for it was to be a forced march. Neither horse nor man could be taken unless in prime condition, for a break down on part of either on the way meant delay to the entire command, or death by torture to the hapless trooper left behind. Small hope was there of a march made unobserved, for Stabber's band of Ogallalas had been for weeks encamped within plain view. Less hope was there of Stabber's holding aloof now that his brethren at the Big Horn had declared for war. He was a recalcitrant of the first magnitude, a subchief who had never missed the warpath when the Sioux were afield, or the consolation trip to Washington between times. Where Stabber went his young men followed unquestioning. It was a marvel that Kennedy had succeeded in getting through. It meant that the Indian runners, or the Indian smokes and signals, had not at once so covered the country with scouts that couriers could by no possibility slip between them. But now the signal fire was gleaming at Eagle Butte, and an answering blaze had flared from Stabber's camp. Invisible from Fort Frayne, they had both been seen by shrewd non-commissioned officers, sent scouting up the Platte by Maj. Webb within half an hour of the coming of the alarm.

"Ray will push ahead at once," said Webb, to his silent subordinates. "You see Col. Plodder has only two troops up there and he will need all his infantry to defend the post. I've wired to Laramie and to department headquarters and further orders will come before noon. Let all the cavalry be ready. Then if we push out, Dade, we leave Fort Frayne to you. They'll hardly venture south of the Platte this time."

"Is—Mr. Field going with Capt. Ray?" presently ventured young Ross, who knew Ray had but one subaltern for duty at the moment, and whose soul was burning with eagerness to accompany the first troop to take the field.

"No," said the major, shortly. "Capt. Ray needs no more."

"I only asked because Field isn't here, and I thought—maybe—" tumbled Ross, ingloriously, but the mischief was done.

"Mr. Field is—busy," answered the major, still more shortly, then redened to his bushy brows, for at the doorway, in riding dress, and with a face the color of parchment, stood the officer in question. It was a moment that threatened panic, but Webb met the crisis with marked aplomb.

"Oh, Field," he cried, "there's another matter. I want two good men to slip out at once and see how many of Stabber's people start or have started. It may be daybreak before they can tell. Sergt. Schreiber would be a tiptop man for one—and little Duffy. You 'tend to it."

And so, mercifully, he sent the lad away until the crowd should have dispersed. Only Blake and Ray were with him when, after awhile, Mr. Field returned and stood silently before them. Well he knew that the post commander could hardly overlook the absence of his adjutant at such a time.

"Have you anything to tell me, Field?" was the major's only query, his tone full of gentle yet grave reproach.

"I was restless. I could not sleep, sir. I went out—purposely."

"You know no horse can be taken from the stables at night except in presence of the sergeant or corporal of the guard."

"I took none, sir," was the answer, and now both faces were white. "I rode one of—Mr. Ray's."

For one moment there was no sound but the loud ticking of the big office clock. Then came the question: "Who rode the others, Field? The sentries say they heard three."

There was another moment of silence. Ray stepped on tiptoe to the door as though he wanted not to hear. Blake looked blankly out of the window. Then the young soldier spoke.

"I—cannot tell you, sir."

For full ten seconds the post commander sat with grave, pallid face, looking straight into the eyes of his young staff officer. White as his senior, but with eyes as unflinching, Field returned the gaze. At last the major's voice was heard again, sad and constrained.

"Field, Capt. Ray starts on a forced march at once for Fort Beecher. I wish you to go with him."

CHAPTER IV.

Many a time has it happened in the old days of the old army that the post adjutant has begged to be allowed to go with some detachment sent after Indians. Rarely has it happened, however, that, without any request from the detachment commander or of his own, has the post adjutant been ordered to go. No one could say of Beverly Field that he had not abundantly availed himself of every opportunity for active service in the past. During his first two years with the regiment he had spent more than half the time in saddle and afield, scouting the trails of war parties or marauding bands, or watching over a peaceful tribe when on the annual hunt. Twice he had been out with Ray, which meant a liberal education in plaincraft and frontier duty. Twice 30 times, probably, had he said he would welcome a chance to go again with Capt. Ray, and now the chance had come, so had the spoken order, and, so far from receiving it with rejoicing, it was more than apparent that he heard it with something like dismay.

But Webb was not the man to either explain or defend an order, even to a junior for whom he cherished such regard. Field felt instinctively that it was not because of a wish, expressed in the past he was so suddenly bidden to take the field. Ray's senior subaltern, as he has been said, was absent, being on duty at West Point, but his junior was on hand, and Ray really did not need, and probably had not applied for, the services of Mr. Field. It was all the major's doing, and all, reasoned he, because the major deemed it best that for the time being his young adjutant should be sent away from the post. Impulse prompted Field to ask wherein he had offended or failed. Reflection taught him, however, that he would be wise to ask no questions. It might well be that Webb knew more of what had happened during the night than he, Beverly Field, would care to have mentioned.

"You can be ready, can you not?" asked the major.

"I am ready now, sir," was the brief, firm reply, but the tone told unerringly that the lad resented and in heart rebelled at the detail. "To whom shall I turn over the post fund, sir?"

"I do not care to have you transfer funds or anything, Field. This is but a temporary affair, one that will take you away perhaps a fortnight."

"I prefer that it should be permanent, sir," was the young officer's sudden interruption, and though his eyes were blazing, he spoke with effort, his face still white with mingled sense of indignity and indignation.

"Gently, Mr. Field," said Webb, with unruffled calm, even while uplifting a hand in quiet warning. "We will consider that, if need be, on your return. Meantime, if you desire, I will receipt to you for the post fund or any other public money."

"That is the trouble, sir. The best I can do is give you an order for it. Post treasurers, as a rule, have not had to turn over their funds at four o'clock in the morning," which statement was true enough, however injudicious it might be to bruit it. Mild-mannered commanding officers sometimes amaze their subordinates by most unlooked for and unwelcome eruptiveness of speech when they feel that an unwarrantable liberty has been taken. Webb did not take fire. He turned icy.

"The quartermaster's safe can be opened at any moment, Mr. Field," said he, the blue gray eyes glittering, dangerously. "I presume your funds are there."

"It was because the quartermaster would not open it at any moment that I took them out and placed them elsewhere," hotly answered Field, and not until then did Webb remember that there had been quite a fiery talk, followed by hyperborean estrangement, between his two staff officers, and now, as the only government safe at the post was in the office of the quartermaster, and the only other one was Bill Hay's big "Phoenix" at the store, it dawned upon the major that it was there Mr. Field had stowed his packages of currency—a violation of orders pure and simple—and that was why he could not produce the money on the spot. Webb reflected. If he let Ray start at dawn and held Field back until the trader was astir, it might be eight o'clock before the youngster could set forth. By that time Ray would be perhaps a dozen miles to the northward, and with keen-eyed Indian scouts noting the march of the troop and keeping vigilant watch for possible stragglers, it might be sending the lad to certain death, for Plodder had said in so many words the Sioux about him had declared for war, had butchered three ranchmen on the Dry Fork, had fired on and driven in his herd guards and wood choppers, and, what started with Lane Wolf's big band, would spread to Stabber's little one in less than no time, and what spread to Stabber's would soon reach a host of the Sioux. Moreover, there was another reason. It would give Field opportunity for further conference with—inmates of the trader's household, and the major had his own grave reasons for seeking to prevent that.

"Your written order will be sufficient, Mr. Field," said he. "Send me memorandum of the amounts and I will receipt at once, so that you can go without further thought of them. And now," with a glance at the clock, "you have hardly half an hour in which to get ready."

Raising his hand in mechanical salute, Field faced about, cast one look at Blake, standing uncomfortably at the window, and then strode angering away to his quarters, smarting under a sense of unmerited rebuke, yet realizing that, as matters looked, no one was more to blame than himself.

Just as the first faint flush of coming day was mantling the pallid eastern sky, and while the stars still sparkled aloft and the big, bright moon was sinking to the snow-tipped peaks far away to the occident, in shadowy column a troop of 50 horse filed slowly from The Sorrels' big corral and headed straight for the Platte. Swift and unfordable in front of Frayne in the earlier summer, the river now went murmuring sleepily over its stony bed, and Ray led boldly down the bank and plunged girth deep into the foaming waters. Five minutes more and every man had lined up safely on the northward bank. In low tone the order was given, starting as Ray did, in solid column of fours. In dead silence the little command moved slowly away, followed by the eyes of half the garrison on the bluff. Many of these were women and children, who gazed through a mist of tears. Ray turned in saddle as the last of his men went by; looked long at the dim light in the upper window of his home, where, clasping her children to her heart, his devoted wife knelt watching them, her fond lips moving in ceaseless prayer. Dimly she could see the tired leader, her soldier husband, sitting in saddle at the bank. Bravely she answered the flutter of his handkerchief in farewell. Then all was swallowed up in the shadows of the distant prairie, and from the nursery adjoining her room there rose a querulous wail that told that her baby daughter was waking, indifferent to the need that sent the soldier father to the aid of distant comrades, threatened by a merciless foe, and conscious only of her infantile demands and expectations. Not yet ten years old, that brave, devoted wife and mother had known but two summers that had not torn her husband from her side on just such quest and duty, for these were the days of the building up of the west, resisted to the bitter end by the red wards of the nation.

The sun was just peering over the rough, jagged outline of the eastward buttes, when a quick yet muffled step was heard on the major's veranda and a picturesque figure stood waiting at the door. Scout, of course, a stranger would have said at a glance, for from head to foot the man was clad in beaded buckskin, without sign of soldier garb of any kind, but in that strange garb there stood revealed one of the famous sergeants of a famous regiment, the veteran of a quarter of a century of service with the standard, wounded time and again, bearing the scars of Stuart's sabre and of Southern lead, of Indian arrow and bullet both; proud possessor of the medal of honor that many a senior sought in vain; proud as the Lucifer from whom he took his Christian name, brave, cool, resolute and ever reliable—Schreiber, first sergeant of old "K" troop for many a year, faced his post commander with brief and characteristic report:

"Sir, Chief Stabber, with over 34 warriors, left camp about three o'clock, heading for Eagle Butte."

Dean Stanley and His Tea.

The late Mr. Augustus Hare lived and moved among distinguished people all his life, and his voluminous reminiscences are full of delightful anecdotes. Dean Stanley was one of his cousins, and one of many stories which Mr. Hare told of him was as follows:

"Arthur," as the author spoke of him, "was quite devoid of either taste or smell. He was breakfasting one morning with Jovett, who was exactly the same. For some reason—[unexplicable under the circumstances—they were both inordinately fond of tea. On this particular morning they had each drunk eight cups when suddenly as Jovett rose from the table, he said, 'Good gracious! I quite forgot to put the tea in!' An oyster and a big bun were added Mr. Hare, the only things Stanley cared for in the way of food. 'He could feel them going down,' he said.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Thought He Had Hellfire.

Dr. Talmage used to tell a story about an old presiding elder who had a great fondness for tabasco sauce. Not always able to get this on his travels through his district, he carried a bottle of it with him. This he always had placed on the table of the hotel where he stayed.

One day an old rustic sat opposite the venerable elder at dinner and helped himself freely to the compound. He got a big dose of it—in fact, it took some time for him to recover from the effects. When he did finally stop coughing long enough to talk, he glared at the elder and said: "I've heard lots of preachers preach about hellfire, but you are the first I ever seen that carried it about with him."—N. Y. Tribune.

Cause of the Blister.

"I notice," said the observant lady to the cabby, as she handed him the strictly legal fare, "that your poor horse has got a large blister on the side of his neck. Do be careful with him, won't you?"

"Yes, mum," the cabby replied; "he hurt himself turning round so often to see if any kind-hearted old party would give me an extra copper or two for an extra good feed for him. It did happen once, and he was so surprised and pleased that he wept tears of joy, mum, and I think it must have drawn 'em all into one spot, and there ain't no baldder yet."—Tit-Bits.

THE INDIGO BIRD.

Oh, late to come but long to sing,
My little finch of deep-dyed wing,
I welcome thee this day!
Thou comest with the orchard bloom,
The azure days, the sweet perfume
That fills the breath of May.

A winged gem amid the trees,
A cheery strain upon the breeze
From tree-top sitting down;
A leafy nest in covert low,
When daisies come and brambles blow,
A mate in Quaker brown.

But most I prize, past summer's prime,
Thy faithful tree-top strain;
No brilliant bursts our ears enthral—
A prelude with a "dying fall"
That soothes the summer's pain.

Where blackcaps sweeten in the shade,
And clematis a bowery bath made,
Or, in the bushy fields,
On breezy slopes where cattle graze,
At noon on dreamy August days,
Thy strain its solace yields.

Oh, bird, hark to sun and heat,
And steeped in summer languor sweet,
The tranquil days are thine.
The season's fret and urge are o'er,
Its tide is lolling on the shore;
Make thy contentment mine!

Sir Roland's Experience

By WILSON M. MATTHEWS

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

WHEN Sir Roland Chesterton announced his engagement to Camille Rodays, a popular French actress, English society was horrified, while the French elite merely shrugged their shoulders and said: "Ah, bien!" Then the reported engagement was declared false and again Dame Rumor circulated the announcement as a positive fact this time.

Sir Roland, having just reached his majority, was a handsome, reckless, dare-devil sort of a fellow, with an income of £20,000 sterling a year. One day at the club, when in one of his reckless moods, he publicly announced the engagement. As a matter of fact it caused a great row in the young baronet's family. Lady Chesterton, the mother of Sir Roland, and the handsomest and haughtiest woman in all England, became hysterical when a "dear" friend told her the news. She actually took the boy in her arms and in affectionate and endearing terms entreated him to renounce this foolish love. The Ladies Blanche and Eleanor, his elder sisters, went on their knees to him; his cousin, who came next in succession to the title and estates, asked him to abdicate; his fellow clubmen simply laughed at him; but Sir Roland remained obdurate—for a little while.

Then very unexpectedly came the announcement that the "marriage" was "indefinitely" postponed, and Sir Roland suddenly determined to make a tour of the continent. He was gone almost a year when one morning he returned as mysteriously as he had departed. He was received with open arms by all members of the baronet's family, for they were thoroughly convinced that his infatuation for pretty Camille was gone.

It was shortly before midnight one evening, as Sir Roland was preparing to leave the club, that a letter was handed to him by a messenger boy. The hand writing on the back of the envelope caused him to turn deathly pale, and with trembling fingers he broke the seal.

"My Dear Roland," it ran. "Come to me as soon as you get this. I have but a little while to live, the doctor told me yesterday. My long sickness has made me horribly ugly, but I am starved for just one smile from you. I am always at home and can see you any time."

The next day at two o'clock he went to see her and was horrified at her changed appearance. Her cheeks, once oval and tinted with delicate pink, were now sunken and colorless; great, dark rings encircled her eyes, and deep, heavy lines that told of long suffering marred the face that was once famous for its beauty. The eyes retained much of their former brilliancy, the lips were still fresh and pink, and the glorious locks of hair, as they lay in tangled disorder on the white pillows, were still beautiful as when first he met her. The room, with the curtains all drawn, and the medicine bottles arranged in profusion about her, Camille seemed really about to enter the portals of death. Sir Roland remained but a short while in the sick room and as he turned to go he met a large, brusque woman in the doorway wearing the garb of a nurse, and who treated him in a curly fashion when he inquired after the patient. "The illness is her affair, not yours," she said, brushing past him. The next day Sir Roland again visited the sick room and found Camille a trifle better. Her eyes flashed with the old brilliancy and in every way her manner was quite like the Camille of former days. Sir Roland passed a most congenial hour in her company until the nurse came and in the same brusque fashion dismissed him from the room. When he reached the stairway a bell rang in the lower hall.

"I knew the doctor would come and find you here!" cried the nurse, shaking her fist in Sir Roland's face. The next instant a fine, portly-looking man entered the hallway. When the nurse went upstairs to inform Camille of the doctor's arrival Sir Roland seized the opportunity to make inquiries.

"Is Mademoiselle Camille dangerously ill? Or do you think she will recover?"

"I presume you are a near friend of mademoiselle's?"

"Yes—yes, of course!"

"Then I would say mademoiselle is quite ill. I have done everything for her that medical science can do but—" he hesitated.

"Is her illness so serious that you have given up all hope?"

"Practically. You see it is what people call 'heart break.' A wealthy baronet, who came of a very aristocratic family, left her suddenly. At first she succeeded in hiding her sorrow, but it proved too much for her strength, and as a consequence she collapsed."

"When she was able to sit up she insisted on having a window open, and in an hour afterward was taken with a hard chill, then came a hacking cough, which affected her lungs—that is all; it is simply a question of time."

"There must be something you can do for her to save her from death, medical science is so advanced nowadays. If it is simply a matter of money—"

"No, no, no! Money, science or nothing else can save her. She tried change of climate, she consulted the most eminent specialists, and at last she asked that she might come home to spend the few remaining weeks of her life."

"Doctor, mademoiselle is ready to receive you," said the nurse, appearing at the door.

A week after Sir Roland went again to see Camille, but was refused admission to her apartments. "Mademoiselle is much worse. Lord Chesterton, and she has changed dreadfully; she absolutely refused to see anyone."

"Then it would not make her happy now—she would not care to—"

"To what, my lord?"

"To marry me."

"I fear—but wait; here comes the doctor now."

Sir Roland took the doctor to one side and unfolded his plan, although the doctor warned him that Camille could live but a few hours; then, deliberately pushing the nurse to one side, he entered Camille's room, and was horrified at the change in her condition, her lips were white as death, her face was ghastly like that of a corpse, and the light from the green shaded lamp made the room look weird and strange. Had he been a closer observer he would have noticed a mocking smile playing about her mouth as he told her of a certain thing he intended to do. But, as a most natural consequence, he saw nothing. Returning two days later, clothed with all the necessary authority of the law, Camille Rodays became Lady Chesterton, the nurse and the doctor acting as witnesses to the ceremony. After the ceremony was over Sir Roland bent over the bed and, taking the new Lady Chesterton in his arms, kissed her colorless lips, despite her efforts to struggle away from him. The next instant the nurse was ordering him out of the house, declaring that the excitement brought on by the hasty marriage would be the death of the girl.

Sir Roland walked rapidly down the narrow little street with a very serious expression on his handsome young face. He was both glad and sorry; he was thoroughly convinced that he had done the right thing by Camille. He at least had kept his word, but the family—what would they say? Then the thought came to him that probably Camille would die in a week or so; before his chivalrous act became known; and the very next moment the thought of Camille dying set his heart to beating wildly. After he had walked some distance he took a cigar from an inner pocket, lit off the end and was going to light it when he felt a sticky substance on his lips. Impulsively, he drew his hand across his mouth, then looked at his fingers, and saw they were smeared with a cosmetic.

"Could it be?" he asked himself, then he remembered how round and plump Camille's hand was when he placed the ring on her finger. Turning back, he walked rapidly, his heart filled with doubt and misgiving. As he again approached the pretty little villa he turned hastily down a side street that led directly past the garden. Reaching the gate, he lifted the latch and entered, with the same rapid strides he walked up the gravelled pathway; upon reaching the house he entered unannounced.

In the garden room, seated about a table, was a merry company; Camille, in the best of health and bewitchingly beautiful, sat at the head of the table arrayed in a costly gown; on one side sat the fake nurse, and on the other the "doctor" in whom Sir Roland recognized a young variety actor that had lately become popular; some chorus girls and a few amateurs completed the company.

"How strange that I should not have been asked to this feast," he said, entering the room very quietly.

The "doctor" made an effort to reply, the "nurse" covered her face with her hands, the chorus girls sat mute and dumb with terror, but Camille, calm and collected, rose and went to him.

"Roland, I know it was wrong, but it is no more than you deserve. I will admit it was all a trick, but the law can't annul the marriage on that account," and her voice grew tender and pleading. "I never meant you to know how I had deceived you. You will forgive me—you will—Roland!" She held out her beautiful arms to him, and for a moment he hesitated, then almost fiercely he took her in his arms and showered her face with kisses.

A fortnight later London was startled by the announcement that Sir Roland Chesterton has abdicated in favor of his cousin, Sir Charles.

RUINED THE ECHO.

The College Students Had Been Practicing Their Yell and Had Torn Up the Ground.

"What has become of the splendid echo song?" asked the returned guest of the summer hotel landlord, relates Judge. "Well, I'll tell you. After you left last fall there was a bunch of these college students come, one night they got full of love for Miss Mages, or some other woman, so they said, and was likewise full of something else, and they got out here in front of the hotel, and all at once an all together, they cut loose with the cadenced thing about 'Hiss, hiss, hiss' and a whole lot more to the same effect, and that there echo just naturally must give up the ghost and quit, for the next morning one of the hired men was over there on the bluff, and he said the ground was torn up, the place of 20 feet square, and there seemed to have been a terrible struggle. At any rate, we ain't seen nor heard nothing of the echo since."

A Good Story.

Frederick, Ia., July 13th.—Mr. A. S. Grover, of this place, tells an interesting story showing how sick people may regain their health if they will only be guided by the experience of others. He says: "I had a very bad case of Kidney Trouble, which affected my urinary organs so that I had to get up every night of the night. I could not retain my urine and my feet and limbs began to swell. My weight was quickly running down."

"After I had tried many things in vain, I began to use Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine which had cured some other very bad cases. 'This remedy has done wonders for me. I have gained eight pounds in two months. The blood has all gone from my feet and legs, and I don't have to get up at night. I look in all about ten boxes better! I was all sound.'"

"These who suffer as did Mr. Grover can make no mistake in taking Doan's Kidney Pills, for they are a sure, safe and permanent cure for all Kidney and urinary disorders."

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-Mark.
Buffalo, N. Y., Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, has granted a permanent injunction, with costs, against Paul B. Hudson and others, of New York City, restraining them from making or selling a foot powder which the court declares is an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," now so largely advertised and sold over the country. The owner of the trade-mark, "Foot-Ease," is Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., and the decision in this suit upholds his trade-mark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising. Similar rights will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trade-mark rights.

SUFFERING WOMEN.

AMERICA is the land of nervous women.

The great majority of nervous women are so because they are suffering from some form of female disease.

Mrs. Emma Mitchell, 520 Louisiana street, Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "Peruna has certainly been a blessing in disguise to me, for when I first began taking it for troubles peculiar to the sex and a generally worn out system, I had little faith."

"For the past five years I have rarely been without pain, but Peruna has changed all this, and in a very short time. I think I had only taken two bottles before I began to recuperate very quickly, and seven bottles made me well. I do not have headache or backache any more, and have some interest in life. I give all credit where it is due, and that is to Peruna."—Emma Mitchell.

By far the greatest number of female troubles are caused directly by catarrh. They are catarrh of the organ which affected. These women despair of recovery. Female trouble is so common.

Striking Coincidence.
"I don't suppose he meant anything unkind," said the young woman, "but it was a very startling coincidence."

NERVE WORN KIDNEYS.

Doan's Kidney Pills make freedom from kidney trouble possible. They carry a kind of medication to the kidneys that brings a bright ray of hope to desperate cases. Aching backs are eased. Hip, backache and joint pains overcome. Swelling of the limbs and dropsy signs vanish.
LOCK HAVEN, PA.—Mrs. W. Annunzio writes: "A few weeks ago I sent for a trial box of Doan's Kidney Pills for myself, and they did all they are said to do. My husband was kicked last fall by a horse and badly hurt—his hip was fractured—and after he recovered he was in such misery that he could hardly walk, and to stoop caused him such distress that he thought he would have to quit work—also, it affected his bladder, and he was unable to make his water without so much distress. I insisted on his getting a box of your pills and trying them, so I went to Mason's Drug Store and got a box. The first box helped him so much that I got the second and also the third, and now he is entirely well."—Mrs. L. W. Annunzio, Lock Haven, Pa.

HAIR GROWTH
Promoted by Shampoos of Cuticura Soap
And Dressings of Cuticura the Great Skin Cure
Purest, Sweetest, Most Effective Remedies for Skin, Scalp and Hair.

This treatment at once stops falling hair, removes crusts, scales and dandruff, destroys hair parasites, soothes irritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, loosens the scalp skin, supplies the roots with energy and nourishment, and makes the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp when all else fails.
Millions of women now rely on Cuticura Soap assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings and chafings, for annoying irritations, or too free or offensive perspiration, for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sensitive, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet and nursery.
Cuticura remedies are the standard skin cures and honour remedies of the world. Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, in the severer forms, take Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. A single set is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp and blood humors, from pimples to scrofula, from infancy to age, when all else fails.
Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, 50c (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c per vial of 60). Ointment, 25c. Resolvent, 1.00. (See Caution Box.) Paris, 8 Rue de la Paix. Boston, 127 Columbus Ave. Letter Box 4, N. Y. City. Sole Importers, The J. C. Carter Co., New York City.

EVENING COSTUME OF LIBERTY SILK.

A charming evening costume is constructed of Liberty silk. The bodice is supplied with both finish and style by a dainty corsage device of satin ribbon roses; while the further decoration of a graceful bertha of Luxenil lace inset with pink lace medallions lends itself admirably to the graceful stuff of which this gown is made. The accented skirt is decorated with bands of the lace in a pointed effect with a medallion appearing at each point. Gowns of this character are especially suited to take added beauty from hand embroidery or by using some of the many pretty lace stitches for the medallions. For this choose a hard twisted silk like Corticelli crotchet or E E twisted embroidery silk.

Among the larger hats for sunny weather is shown a shady garden hat of Tuscan straw, with a green velvet wreath on the back of its crown, and a large wreath of pink crush roses resting on the hair in front under the brim—a charming combination having both beauty and chic to commend it.

Master's Sale!

BOURBON CIRCUIT COURT.

GEO. R. DAVIS, Guardian, etc. Plaintiff.

VS.

HELEN M. DAVIS, Defendant.

By virtue of judgment made and entered in the above styled cause on the 25th day of June, 1903, I will expose to public sale to the highest and best bidder on Monday, July 27, '03,

at about the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, on Main street, in front of the court house square, in Paris, Kentucky, the following described property, to-wit:

A certain house and lot on the east side of Pleasant street, in Paris, Kentucky, beginning at the intersection of said street and Mrs. E. McCahey's lot and running with her line 240 feet and 8 inches to a stone wall along the line of the L. & N. Railroad; then with said stone wall 54 feet 5 inches to the line of Mrs. A. M. Clayton; then with said line 217 feet 3 inches to Pleasant street; then with said street 48½ feet to the beginning, and it is the same property conveyed to George R. Davis by Mrs. A. M. Clayton by deed recorded in deed-book 74, page 518 in the office of the Clerk of the Bourbon County Court.

Said sale will be made upon a credit of six and twelve months for equal parts of the purchase money, for which the purchaser will be required to execute bonds with good and approved security, payable to the undersigned Master Commissioner, and bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the day of sale until paid. By order of the Court no bid for less than four thousand dollars ($4,000) will be accepted.

Witness my hand this 3rd day of July, 1903.
